Question 12

I am a ten-year-old girl who lives in a village called Banipur. In our village, selected children between the age group of ten to fifteen years are members of a council that meets once every week. I, too, am a member of this council that comprises only children.

Few months ago, the rampant use of polythene bags led to the death of stray cattle in our village. They had been feeding on these bags which were casually dumped by the villagers. This incident urged us to launch a campaign against the use of polythene bags. We were also supported by the elders of our village in this initiative. Gradually, the awareness on creating a plastic free environment spread to other villages too.

- (i) Which council is being referred to by the narrator? [1]
- (ii) Elaborate on the role of the council, identified in subpart (i), in the lives of the children in rural areas. [6]
