Once upon a time there lived an old man who was very, very greedy. He was quiet rich and had everything. He had a beautiful hen that laid a golden egg daily. These eggs had made him even richer. But his hunger for money was never satisfied. He was always thinking of having more and more money. He wanted to be one of the richest men in the world.

The man's wife was a noble lady. She hated her husband's habit of wanting more and more wealth. She always requested him to give up greed and be a good man. He had only one aim before his eyes and that was to gather more and more wealth.

One day the old man was sun-bathing in the compound of his house. Suddenly an idea flashed across his mind. He said, "My hen lays a golden egg daily. It must be having a large number of golden eggs in its body. Why shouldn't I get them all at once! Surely I can be one of the richest men in the world." Thinking so the old man went inside the house and bought a sharp knife. Then he caught his hen and cut it open. There were no eggs inside. There was nothing but blood and bones. The man was extremely sorry to lose his beautiful hen. He hung his head in shame.
